

Cuttin' Loose Club of Washington

“There is something about the outside of a horse that is good for the inside of a man.”

Winston Churchill

The Cuttin' Loose Club of Washington (CLCOW) is a non-profit organization formed in 1984 which promotes the sport of cutting and cow horses. As a grassroots organization, CLCOW caters to all levels and abilities of riders, from beginner to professional cutters, and emphasizes promoting youth participation. CLCOW offers cattle practices, a summer show series and educational events and holds a highly anticipated year-end awards banquet each fall.

We at CLCOW sincerely appreciate the generosity of our sponsors who help financially support our club, so we can in-turn continue to serve our community.

WHAT IS A CUTTING HORSE?

A horse that is trained to separate a single cow out from a herd of cattle, by first reading the intentions of the rider on which cow to sort away from the herd. Then reading the single cows' body language and intentions, the rider turns over control to the cutting horse to respond with lightning fast reflexes to go fast, stop hard and make big sweeping turns to mirror the cows movements in its attempt to return to the herd.

“There are no shortcuts to any place worth going” – Helen Keller

Cutting Horse Owners are Consumers!

Cutting horse owners support the economic growth of their communities and local small businesses by purchasing trucks, horse trailers, mechanic and tire services, insurance and fuel, keeping their vehicles in top shape for hauling horses to lessons and events. They buy properties, purchase horses, pay for farrier and veterinary services, chiropractic, massage therapy, hay, feed, and medicines. They shop locally buying saddles, sport boots, bridles, blankets, jeans, riding boots, hats, and shirts. They buy material and hire contractors to build barns, arenas, paddocks, corrals, and fencing. They visit restaurants, coffee shops, motels and stores. Cutters consume a diverse list of products and services keeping the local economy humming along.
